ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Embodiments of the invention generally provide an electrochemical processing system configured to provide selected amounts of electrolyte composition components for single plating process. The selected amounts of components to be added to an electrolyte composition may be achieved by a volume measurement device using an ultrasonic sensor to measure volume of a vessel.